A story of leadership and compassion witnessed following Hurricane Katrina

Herrington weaves gripping details of the lives of people, businesses, and entire cities that were temporarily reversed and permanently altered by one of the most catastrophic storms in U.S. history, Hurricane Katrina.

But from the destruction emerged a humanitarian response on a scale that few people will ever experience.

Contraflow is a tribute to the civic, corporate, and educational leaders who stepped up to show leadership and compassion and to provide critical resources and hope in the aftermath of a devastating storm.

"Bill Herrington has written a gripping and well-informed account of the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. He shares inspiring stories of everyday heroes who overcame adversity, helped others do so, and who turned individual tragedies into a community triumph." –Bill White, former Houston mayor, chairman of Lazard Houston

"Contraflow is about the lessons we all learned from Hurricane Katrina so we can better prepare future generations for crisis situations." - Russel L. Honore, Lieutenant General of the United States Army (retired), commander of Joint Task Force Katrina

About the Author

As a corporate banker in New Orleans for 20 years, Bill Herrington actively supported community education alongside his wife Frances, a teacher. He uses his unique perspective of the extraordinary leadership witnessed after Katrina to raise funds to support education of youth impacted by natural disasters or family tragedies.
